

Could you be a school governor?

Banwell Primary School is a vibrant, busy village school that puts children at the heart of everything it does. We have vacancies on our board of governors and are looking for committed and enthusiastic volunteers to contribute to our thriving community.

Governors have a vital role. We do not manage the school day-to-day, but oversee its long-term development. Ultimately, governors have three core roles: setting the school's strategy, supporting and challenging the school's management team and making executive decisions about school finance and increasing the school's success.

- You don't need to be a parent or have a child at our school
- You don't need to be an expert in education, but you do need an enquiring mind, be enthusiastic, literate and numerate, and good at working in a team
- Average commitment is 5-10 hours per term
- Training and support is available for new governors and is free
- New governors are partnered with existing ones for support
- Term of office is normally four years, but may be shorter
