

THE CRAZY ERUPTION

On the 24th August 79AD the feisty Mount Vesuvius erupted. It filled the sky with lava and ash and turned day to night. The lava and ash was moving really fast and the citizens couldn't keep up. When all of that finished, all of the people and animals died if they couldn't escape.

The citizens of Pompeii were just playing and doing their normal day then the floor started to shake. Pompeii is in the Bay of Naples in Italy. Pompeii is a wonderful beautiful city.

In the afternoon the floor started to shake. The people thought it was an earthquake. Even though they thought it was an earthquake they wasn't really scared because they had one not long ago so they know what will happen and not much will happen.

At 1pm Mount Vesuvius the feisty volcano erupted. When Mount Vesuvius erupted the first time it just filled the sky with ash and smoke. 18 hours later, the dangerous volcano exploded again in chaos. At 2am, the second eruption happened all of the ash, bomb and magma all came together and turned into a pyroclastic flow.

The pyroclastic flow is a dangerous hit of wind. A pyroclastic is a poisonous bit of wind. The pyroclastic flow can kill hundreds of people also it goes at 100 miles per hour.

Did you know thousands of people died in the pyroclastic flow? The people of Pompeii turned into rock.
