

Erupting Pompeii!

One day in Pompeii, it was a normal day and kids were playing happily. After the ground started to shake but they weren't worried because they thought it was an earthquake but it was a volcano erupting. They all looked up at the sky it was black from the black dust. The lava killed kids, adults and animals. It was devastating.

When the volcano erupting the ash was 9 feet deep. The people were running so fast but the black dust killed most people because they couldn't breathe.

As the volcano erupted everyone was running like crazy. Everyone was in shock but they all died and no one survived.

The smoke reached up to 14 km a minute and they were devastated they died to and there were no survivors. Over 1000 million people died.

They tried to save each other but the ash reached too far. After a few days the volcano had settled down. But there were still rocks and destroyed buildings.

A few days after all that was left were bones and everything was destroyed. Years later Pompeii was back together again.
